We would like to mention the sad loss of Susan Ades, who, over the years, has regularly turned out to help decorate and dress the sets, keeping herself quietly in the background but always getting the job done.

We offer our condolences to David and the boys and hope that David will re-join the team in the future.

A few words from the Producer:

I hope you all enjoy tonight's performance. The team have worked well throughout rehearsals and I'd like to thank everyone for their hard work and co-operation. I think special thanks ought to go to John Brooks, who appears out of nowhere each time we put on a show to help Ron and the team to build the set. His assistance is always welcome as, in this case, many hands DO make light work. So Thanks, John!

The Dunham Thespians are very pleased to welcome back Mark Horne for this production (and many more, we hope!). Mark is the son of Barney Horne who, as many of you will know, was a regular member of the Thespians until he moved away some time ago. It's good to see that Mark's carrying on in his father's footsteps. (And watch out for Rachael Gallagher making her debut too!)
